

We are counting on you to achieve our collective goal

To empower young people to help build a more just world, we are inviting you to share your voice, show your support and help generate further support from your friends, peers and networks.

We want to present a petition to the United Nations to hold governments accountable to deliver their ICPD commitments by 2015.

The statement for the petition we are asking people to sign, is: "Count Me In: Sexual Rights for All".

We aim to collect signatures from young people representing every country around the globe and you can help us do this.

Our target is to attract hundreds of thousands of signatures representing every country on the planet by November 2009. You'll see that the call to sign the petition is included in many of the materials you use in this resource kit.

As well as visiting the website to sign this petition (www.15andcounting.org), we hope young people will upload content onto the site such as video, audio or news to share views, opinions and life stories with others around the world and help stimulate international debate.

There will be a number of different events taking place in each of your countries that provide excellent opportunities for you to engage with your decision makers to get them interested and encourage them to sign the campaign petition as well.
